

Sassy and Sweet

By starlight4ever

Published on Stories Space on 11 Oct 2019

Copyright@2019 All rights reserved Starlight4ever

<https://www.storiesspace.com/stories/poetry/-sassy-and-sweet-.aspx>

Some people did not know what to call her she was a mixture of sweet sixteen and a touch of incredible maturity

No one knew where she came from but they knew when she left

No one could explain her appearance and her generous sunshine smile willing to be a help in all ways no matter the time of day or the cost and never asking for things in return

She was a bit sassy and a bit sweet no one knew what she would do next her voice smooth as butterready at all times to be a light in the darkness and also to be a shoulder to cry on

One day as the sun was in full brilliance

Sassy and Sweet went to the lake

Maybe it was fate maybe it was a choice but she tried to save the drowning child but the lake took her in his place

No one knew where she came from or where she was going to but they always remember her as the woman that turned the town around and gave it life once more starlight4ever