

All Over Again

By Ididntdoit

Published on Stories Space on 12 Aug 2013

Property of person with username ididntdoit.

<https://www.storiesspace.com/stories/poetry/all-over-again.aspx>

I look into your eyes, and I see that beautiful spark. It's like I have never seen it ever before. Though I do each morning when we wake up, and each night when we settle for bed. Your quiet murmurings, just for me, magnified with that look. It mesmerizes me And I see you completely. Never again do I see that hiding, guarded person you once were. When we first met and we were so unsure. It seems silly now to think back on those confused days. I see that spark and it makes me smile. I'm positively honored. I know you, and no other person ever will have this pleasure. You give me what can be only mine, your heart, your soul. The look in your eyes that conveys everything. Your eyes draw me in melting my heart making me breathless. It's overwhelming the vast expanse of emotion I am permitted to find Through the warm eye contact, that brings me home. Making me feel beautiful and special, simply yours. Your eyes never fail to make me fall for you all over again.