Do you not see what you've done to me
My heart breaking into tiny pieces
From words that have been said
Once a friendship that never ceases

A void is left where once was full
Of a love so gentle and pure
That was growing into the night
Now left everything unsure

I am worth more than what you've done
Making me feel smaller than a snail
You know how to hurt me so well
You did it all through fucking e-mail

You told me I was too sweet
Now rumors have been spread
Loyalty got me nowhere
You've filled me with dread

I trusted with all that I am, giving all I could
You didn't ask, just took it away
Now my heart does ache
For a friend that once brightened my day

Once again I'm the one lost
Who will I turn to when life knocks me down
Our friendship was supposed to endure
All the things that make us frown

Someone came between us
You said never would that happen again
Told me a true friend till the end
Oh what a fool I am

A promise made you did not keep
Another one gone just like the rest
You told me you were different
Of this, you would never jest

I hope you're laughing now
As tears flow down my face
My heart in many pieces
By the way, I've given you space

When you are alone once more
I'll be waiting, that's what friends are for I'll never stop believing in you
My friend, my mentor

A friendship that holds true
Through all the good and bad
We've been through it all
To end now is so so sad.
