Time is of the essence It never stops Would you know time if It weren't for a clock Time is only a way to measure Time is considered to be the most valued Wrong Highest value is what you do with your time Don't count the moments Make the moments count Time is short lived Time is overrated Time only exist til yours ends The sand pours on but only to those who use it Most of the time we truly abuse it Change your perception See how things add up then When will you start when will you end A concept only time comprehends
